

THE CLASSES EXPLAINED

PRO EXTREME 2WD & 4WD

This is it, the ultimate of all the Time Attack categories where almost anything goes! The Pro Extreme Class was introduced in 2014 to cater for the constructors and teams that push their designs and creations beyond the envelope.

Provided it resembles a model above the waistline that was a type-approved road vehicle at some point in time, then the car is eligible. The regulations allow for spaceframes, silhouettes, reconfigured chassis and no power or aero limitations whatsoever. Although the class is split into sub-classes for two-wheel-drive and four-wheel-drive cars, the unrestricted nature of the machinery means the driveline configuration is often rendered irrelevant and the two sub-divisiona are amalgamated to produce one top-level of competition.

Even though they exceed the traditional specifications of competition cars, Pro Extreme creations have to be built to Motorsport UK Section J regulations, which means they must comply with racing rules. Consequently, safety cages, a plumbed in extinguisher system, external ignition cut-off switch, in-date seats and five-point harness are required. Drivers must hold a race national B competition licence (minimum) and wear HANS devices, in-date helmets, race suits, boots and gloves.

Due to the freedom of design, Pro Extreme cars do not have to have a passenger seat or full dashboard, which is a requirement for all other Time Attack classes. They may also run alternative fuels, including racing blends and the addition of methanol. However, cars must comply with other championship regulations and have fully functioning lights, a minimum ride height of 40mm and operate within the blanket 105db noise limit.

As far as tyres are concerned, Pirelli slicks and racing wets can be used, with Pirelli's new super-soft compound available for those that are looking for the ultimate performance.

Drivers who sign-up for the whole season will score championship points and win trophies for first, second and third places. Phased payment plans are available to make the cost of participation easier to manage. Entry is also available on an event-by-event basis for just £420 per-round.

Competitors will take part in all four 15-minute (minimum) sessions: Warm-up, Practice, Qualifying and the Final, with points awarded in the Qualifying and Final sessions and the finishing position in the Final dictating the overall results.
